FIRST LADY SPENDS BUSY THREE HOURS IN CHICAGO

During a short visit to Chicago, Wednesday, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, energetic wife of the President, crowded into three hours, the inspection of the Household Training center at 2720 Prairie avenue, the dedication of the South Side Community Art center, 3831 Michigan avenue, a brief visit to the Ida B. Wells homes, low-rent housing project, and attendance at the art center dedicatory banquet at the Parkway ballroom. Hundreds of persons unable to secure admission, stood outside the recently opened art center (No. 1) to catch a glimpse of the First Lady. At the banquet (No. 2) Mrs. Roosevelt was presented with a painting by Charles Davis by Peter Pollack, director of the new center. Immaculately attired in their snow white uniforms, staff members and students at Household Training center line up (No. 3) to hear brief message from distinguished visitor. Honor guard from Giles Post, No. 87, American Legion, under command of Senior Vice Commander Stephens, greeted First Lady (No. 4) upon arrival at training center. (No. 5) Striking view of First Lady during address at banquet. Left to right (No. 6), just before broadcast are Dr. Alain Locke, professor of philosophy, Howard university, who participated in radio broadcast; Howard S. Drew, state administrator, Works Projects Administration; Mrs. Pauline Kigh Reed, president of the art center; Atty. Patrick B. Prescott, chairman, board of directors of center; Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Annabelle Carey Prescott, chairman of the planning committee for the dedication.—Photos by James Gushiniere and Clynnell Jackson, Defender staff photographers.
