The University of Chicago Baha'i Fellowship and the Chicago Baha'i Community, will sponsor the showing of a religious film "A New Wind" 3 p.m. Sunday at Kent Hall, University of Chicago, 58th and Ellis Ave.

Professor Daniel Jordan, Director of the Federal Educational program at the University of Massachusetts, will speak about the film and world religion. He is a graduate of the University of Chicago.

"A New Wind" is a half hour film about the Baha'i Faith. The film focuses on the World

Center and three widely separated communities of this world-wide faith. The film shows how this modern independent religion effects changes in the lives of its followers. The film is one of profound searching, full of the sights, the language and even the music of this global community and, at the same time, a film that examines the basic dilemmas that perplex all people.

George C. Stoney, producer-director of "A New Wind" has made more than 60 films and television shows. His films have won numerous awards, including the coveted Robert Flaherty Special Award for Documentary. Mrs. Stoney has also taught film production at Columbia University of Southern California.

For the production of "A New Wind", Mr. Stoney, who is not a Baha'i, made an intensive study of the Baha'i Teachings and talked with Baha'is around the world.

The Baha'i Faith is an independent world religion with followers in almost every country of the world. Its founder Baha'u'llah, asserts that his Message is a revelation direct from God. He claims that all true religions come from the same divine source, that all the Prophets of God proclaim the Word of God and that religious truth is continuous and relative, not final and absolute.

Baha'is believe that God has revealed His Word in each period of history through a chosen individual, called a Prophet or Messenger, but whom Baha'is refer to as a "Manifestation of God." Abraham, Moses, Buddha, Zoroaster, Christ and Muhammad were among the Manifestations of God.
