

Marion Anderson Honored At Baha'i Temple This Sun.

Miss Marian Anderson, achievement in the world of music but also for her contributions to the unification of mankind and world peace, will be honored at a special ceremony at the Baha'i Temple gardens in Wilmette on Sunday, May 3, at 2:30 P.M.

The occasion will mark the first Illinois planting of the Marian Anderson rose, the first ever named in honor of a living Negro. The tribute was accorded to Miss Anderson, not only for her magnificent

MARIAN ANDERSON

The Marian Anderson rose, developed by Dr. Walter Lam-merts, one of the World's leading hybrid rose experts, was first introduced last October at the famed Pageant of Roses Garden, an American Rose Society test and display garden in southern California.

Following the planting ceremony, Miss Anderson will attend the public worship service in the Baha'i Temple where a special selected will be sung by the Baha'i a cappella choir. "Blessed Is the Spot," a prayer by the Founder of the Baha'i World Faith, was set to music by Charles Wolcott, noted composer and former musical director at Metro Goldwyn Mayer, and dedicated to Miss Anderson.

Immediately following the Temple service, Miss Anderson will be the guest of honor at a reception given by the National Baha'i Assembly at the national Secretariat in Wilmette.
