NORTHWESTERN CONGRESS A.M.E. CHURCH CELEBRATES 50 YEARS OF EDUCATION

DES MOINES, Iowa—The fifth annual young people's congress which was held in St. Paul A.M.E. church, Des Moines, Iowa, July 8-10 marked the fiftieth anniversary of the beginning of leadership training among African Methodists of the Northwest and perhaps of the entire connection, for just fifty years ago, (May, 1891) in a district Sunday school convention then in session in Ottumwa, Iowa, a committee was appointed with the late Dr. J. W. Laws as its chairman, which committee outlined the first normal or teacher training course ever laid down for Sunday school teachers in the A.M.E. connection.

Because of this significant fact Mrs. S. Joe Brown, who had been appointed by Bishop John A. Gregg as conference superintendent of young people brought to Des Moines Bishop William A. Fountain, Sr., of Atlanta, Ga., who in addition to being the vice senior bishop of the church is president of the board of Christian education of the connection. He brought with him his wife, who is treasurer of the Connectional Women's Home and Foreign Missionary society. Both took prominent parts in the celebration of this Golden Jubilee.

About two hundred young people with their adult leaders were present from the states of Iowa, Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota and a three days' religious institute was held, with lectures being given to the various sections on the work of the Sunday school, the Allen Christian Endeavor League and the Junior Missionary work and to the entire delegation on the history of the American Negro and the history of the A.M.E. church.

Bishop Fountain conducted each day a seminar on the modern church for the pastors present. At the close of the congress certificates were awarded to those who had attended and turned in note books on the various lectures.

The concluding session was given to contests in oratory, voice and piano, the orators each speaking upon the subject "African Methodist Youth in a Changing World." The winners of which were (in oratory) Mr. Hobart Garrett of Des Moines; (in voice) Miss Gloria Williams of St. Paul, Minn., and (in piano) Miss Ruth Blaney of St. Paul, Minn.

Officers elected for the ensuing year were Miss Lucy Davis, Des Moines, president; Miss Bernice Allison, St. Paul, Minn., first vice president; Franklin Lintz, Ottumwa, Iowa, second vice president; Miss Loraine Curry, Minneapolis, Minn., secretary; Herman Cayton, Oskaloosa, Iowa, assistant secretary; and Miss June Henry, Davenport, Iowa, treasurer.

Bishop John A. Gregg, who was to have presided, was detained at the bedside of his wife, who passed away at their residence in Kansas City, Kan., on the last day of the congress and a delegation from the congress motored to Kansas City on the following day and attended the services held in Kansas City, some following her remains to her former home at Lawrence, Kan., where she was buried on Saturday, July 12.

PENNSYLVANIA FED. DRAFTS ADELAIDE HARTY FLEMING PRESIDENT ANOTHER YEAR

Breaking a policy of some years, the Pennsylvania State Federation of Negro Women's Clubs, Inc., meeting at Cheyney State Teachers college, on Tuesday re-elected Mrs. Adelaide Harty Fleming, R.N., as president, in a "draft" movement after Mrs. Fleming has literally begged that she be retired after serving four years.

With all sections of the state supporting the nomination, the Philadelphia was elected, carrying back into office with her all of her cabinet. On the same day members of the Junior State Federation re-elected Miss Bettie Cuff of Coatesville, as their president.

Dr. Leslie Pinckney Hill, president of the college, welcomed the federation and told of the outstanding scholarship of the five young women who were recipients of the federation's scholarships last year.

Gives Cheyney $250

The Federation voted continuance of its annual scholarship aid to Cheyney totaling $250 and appropriated $50 donation to the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and $25 to the United Service Organizations. The latter came after a talk by Mrs. Lela Walker Jones, a member of the campaigning committees for USO which will build club houses for soldiers and other enlisted men.

Before the session was closed on Wednesday, the president was authorized to make presentations to the President of the United States and the governor, asking that these officials use their influence to prevent discrimination in defense industries.

Strengthening Stakes

When the convention was opened on Monday afternoon, Mrs. Fleming gave the president's annual address, speaking on the convention topic, "Strengthening the Stakes." She called for a strengthening of stakes in the race's use of its opportunities, in the present campaign for integration into the national defense, in the old-time virtues of honesty and integrity.

This part of the program also heard a welcome from Mrs. Leslie Pinckney Hill; Mrs. Fannie E. Morton, Pittsburgh, treasurer of the federation, who responded, and Mrs. Hazel Garland, McKeesport, who presided.

Graduate of Oberlin college and Columbia university, and holder of the Phi Beta Kappa key, Miss Brodnax warned that "the Negro is entering new fields, in which he has never before been considered."

"Education is a vital necessity," she declared, "and an organization of women can do much to see that the men and youth of the race get the education and training necessary."

Women Have Part

She did not leave the women out of training programs, but reminded them that they must not overlook the important job of morale building that they can do at home and in peacetime occupations.

Also on the Monday evening program were the Rev. Dr. Winsmore Mason, pastor of Allen A.M.E. church, Philadelphia, who brought a "Message from the Christian Church;" G. James Fleming, chairman of the Participation of Negroes in National Defense and managing editor of the Tribune, who spoke on Negroes and the defense program; Mrs. Maude B. Coleman, state interracial consultant, who responded to Dr. Hill.
