Music Notes

The famous St. John A. M. E. choir, under the direction of Carroll Scott, with Mrs. Kathleen Holland Forbes at the organ, appeared in their monthly Sunday afternoon musical Jan. 29.

Joe Sheffelt and his top-notch review, just back from Europe, now touring on the Loew time, were a real hit at Loew's Granada theater the week of Jan. 22. There are a number of acts coming to that theater this season.

Miss Ethel Waters and her African Review is about the best of such reviews to appear in Cleveland this season. We are pleased that the show is playing in a downtown theater. I saw the show in Pittsburgh, Pa. It is well worth the price.

The Sunday Cleveland News had a very nice photograph of Miss Lillian Randolph, Cleveland's own, and also spoke very highly of her singing each night over WJAY from the Pils d'Or night club, one of the finest here.

Harry Draper and his wonder band are also at the club.

The Musical Magpies, after a 10-day rest at home with their families, are back to the road again. The turn is under the direction of Steve Forest, Pittsburgh, Pa., playing all the best of time and houses.

The Race orchestra that play for the Kokomo dance at Danceland, Jan. 29, was great, did not leave who they were, but heard great things about them through some who attended. That's about the finest affair given by the so-called "whites" each year.

The gospel male quartet of St. John's A. M. E. church is about the finest singing quartet that Cleveland has heard in some time. Robert Crowler is due much praise for his selecting of the other three men to form such a wonderful harmonizing male quartet. All are Cleveland boys. We wish the boys much success.
