

Conference Probes U.S. Reaction In China

SAN FRANCISCO—Negro leaders attending the two-day Far Eastern conference here last week-end gave new evidence of their awareness of the dual front of American reaction, which is supporting the Chinese dictatorship of Chiang Kai-Chek in the orient while fomenting race tensions at home.

Sponsored by the national Committee to Win the Peace of which Paul Robeson is co-chairman and the Committee for a Democratic Far Eastern Policy, the conference was to hear first hand reports on the China situation from news correspondents and outstanding veterans of the China theater of war.

James E. Allen, W. E. B. DuBois, Bertram Alves, Dr. Charlotte Hawkins Brown, Earl Dickerson, Dean Dixon, Langston Hughes, Canada Lee and Alain Locke were among those supporting the analysis of American reaction abroad.

Delegates representing the executive council of UNAVA and many local chapters, and NAACP, National Negro Congress and numerous church groups also presented credentials.

Brig. Gen. Evans F. Carlson, famed Marine leader of Carlson's Raiders, was scheduled to make the keynote address. Other speakers were to include Harrison Forman, former New York Times correspondent in China, and Gunther Stein, correspondent in the Far East for the Christian Science Monitor.
