

New Yorker On Project In Haiti

NEW YORK, N. Y. — Prof. Mary Helen Harden, director of Speech and Hearing clinic, will work in Haiti, W. I., this summer.

The New Yorker is to supervise research project aimed at inaugurating a program of speech and hearing correction in the schools and communities of the all-Negro republic.

The project is being conducted under the auspices of the Bahai World Faith in Haiti of which Dr. Maurice LaFleur is chairman.

Miss Harden, a member of Phi Delta Kappa, is fluent in French, the native tongue of Haiti.
