

Bury Widow Of Dean Cook Of Howard U.

WASHINGTON. — (ANP)—Funeral services were held here Saturday for Mrs. Coralie F. Cook, widow of the late Dean George William Cook of Howard university.

Mrs. Cook, herself prominent in civic, welfare and educational work, died after a brief illness Tuesday at Freedman's hospital. She retired from her various activities two years ago due to falling health.

Mrs. Cook was a graduate of Emerson college of Oratory in Boston. She taught oratory and English at Howard university where her late husband was secretary-treasurer and later a trustee.

Survivors include a son, George William Cook Jr., two nieces, Mrs. Helen Jackson and Miss Jessie Burrill; two nephews, J. Paul Clifford and John R. Clifford, and several grandnieces and grandnephews.
