

Mrs. Sengstacke and Daughted Entertained

The Chicago Defender (Big Weekend Edition) (1905-1966); Sep 29, 1917;

ProQuest Historical Newspapers: Chicago Defender

pg. 5

Mrs. Sengstacke and Daughted Entertained

Mrs. J. H. Sengstacke and daughter, Miss Eliza Sengstacke, Savannah, Ga., mother and sister of Editor Robert S. Abbott of the Chicago Defender, who have been visiting the editor several weeks, were entertained this week by Mrs. James M. Woodard, 4822 Federal street. They have been spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. Woodard and the climax of their visit was reached when a delicious dinner was served, followed by an auto drive through the park system and part of the Lincoln highway. A number of friends called and paid their respects to the guests, who are being highly entertained.

Reproduced with permission of the copyright owner. Further reproduction prohibited without permission.