

ROSE FOR A SINGER FROM BAHAI'S

Marian Anderson, world famous contralto, accepts Marian Anderson rose from Wyatt Cooper, superintendent of the gardens at the Baha'i House of Worship, Wilmette, Ill. during her visit at the garden exhibit at the International Flower Show, McCormick Place. Samples of the Marian Anderson rose now grow in the Baha'i gardens and in the gardens of the International Baha'i Center, Haifa, Israel. The Baha'i exhibit featured a "One Earth-One Country" motif, stressing the basic unity of mankind.
