Dr. Lillian Dove, 80, pioneer medic, dies

By TED WATSON

One of the city's most prominent physicians and surgeons, Dr. Lillian Singleton Dove, died Tuesday in Highland Park Hospital. The cause of her death was not disclosed, but according to a grandson, Delmar Mitchell, she had only been ill for a short length of time.

Dr. Dove

Dr. Dove, 80, of 333 Jefferson ave., Glencoe, had offices on the Southside for many years and practiced for 56 years. She was born in Roanoke, Va. where she attended elementary schools, and was a graduate of Princess Anne Academy in Baltimore and the Maryland State College. A graduate of Meharry Medical College, she served her internship at Burt's Infirmary in Clarksville, Tenn., and resident training in Chicago.

Dr. Dove was a member of the American and National Medical Associations, Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority and Baha'i B'rith.

Visitation will be Saturday at 10:30 a.m. and funeral services at 12 noon at Collins Funeral Directors, Ltd. chapel, 1411 E. 67th st. Burial will follow in Lincoln cemetery.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Lillian D. Mitchell and two grandsons, Delmar K. and Keith S. Mitchell.
