

Parole Board Chief Bullock Attends Prison Directors Meet

LOS ANGELES— Atty. Matthew Bullock, chief of the Parole Commission of the state of Massachusetts, was a recent visitor to Southern California where he attended the National Association of Prison directors meeting held in Los Angeles and Long Beach.

A member of the Massachusetts Parole commission for 25 years, Attorney Bullock, has served as chairman of its board of directors for the last five years.

An alumnus of Dartmouth college and Harvard Law school, Bullock has practiced his profession in Georgia, Illinois and Massachusetts.

While in Los Angeles he was house guest of his colleague and wife, Attorney and Mrs. Hugh MacBeth and attended several Bahai meetings, a movement in which he has been active for 15 years.

A dinner in his honor was given by Miss Hazel MacBeth during his stay in the Angel City. Other guests were Atty. and Mrs. Willis O. Tyler, and Atty. Eva Mack.
