

10 College Representatives Are Named To Who's Who Among Women

Four colleges have had representatives named to the first edition of "Who's Who Among American Women."

Allen university, Columbia, S. C., librarian, Miss Georgia E. Cooke was one of 146 South Carolinians named from a group of distinguished professional women. She has been at Allen 14 years.

Instructors from Jackson State college, Jackson, Miss., named are Dr. Jane E. McAllister, professor of education; Miss F. O. Alexander, assistant director of extension and public relations, and Mrs. Margaret W. Alexander, associate professor of language arts.

Joining Jackson State college faculty in 1949, Mrs. Alexander has studied under Rosenwald and Ford Foundation fellowships.

A former employee of the college, Miss Florence Alexander was retired recently by the state department after serving as States Jeans supervisor for 25 years.

The first Negro woman in history to earn a Ph.D. degree in education, Dr. McAllister has been at the college since 1951.

Philander Smith college, Little Rock, Ark., is represented in "Who's Who" by Mesdames Dove McKindra Anderson, a 1946 home economics graduate; Geneva N. Harris, college librarian and associate professor of library science, and Henrietta H. Terrence, registrar and director of admissions and associate professor of communications and drama.

Lady professors from Tennessee State University, Nashville, Tenn., listed are Dr. Lusa S. Bartley, head of the department of health and physical education; Dr. Alma T. Watkins, Dr. Virginia S. Nyabongo and Dr. Sarah M. Pereira.

The holder of three Ph.D.s in the department of modern foreign languages Dr. Bartley has been a member of Tennessee State's faculty for 13 years.

Dr. Watkins has been on the faculty of Tennessee for 16 years and world traveler Dr. Nyabongo has visited 26 countries, 46 of the 49 States in the U.S., and 55 colleges and universities at home and abroad. She has been a member of Tennessee's faculty since 1944.

A 1958 addition to the faculty Dr. Pereira was one of 18 in the Western hemisphere to serve on the auxiliary board of the Baha'i World Faith.
