

What a Great Educator Says of a Great Newspaper

Robert R. Moton

WHEN Robert Russa Moton, graduate of Hampton Institute, and successor to the late Booker T. Washington as principal of Tuskegee Institute, saw last week's Chicago Defender he was overcome with joy.

It was the only paper that published a special edition on Tuskegee's 50th anniversary, thus outdoing all other publications, daily or weekly, with stories and pictures of the Golden Jubilee.

After reading the contents Dr. Moton sent the following telegram to Robert Sengstacke Abbott, editor and publisher of The Chicago Defender, a paper devoted to the people and for the people, and which for 25 years has fought unflinchingly the battles of our Race.
