LOUISE F. SIMMONS, D.S.D.

Mme. Louise Simmons, Doctor of Divine Science, spoke on comparative religion to Prof. Charles S. Braden's class in Fisk Hall at Northwestern University, Evanston, on Tuesday, April 30. There have been a series of lectures at the university on religious history and education, but Mme. Simmons was the first Race person invited to address this group. She spoke of the scientific application of religious training to every-day needs, and following the address she explained in a very lengthy quiz the high points of various phases of Unity and Divine Science. Her presentation was enthusiastically received. Prof. Vails of the Bahai movement also spoke on the founder of the Bahai faith.
