

New Orleans Prepares For Youth Conference

NEW ORLEANS, April 5—The forces of the Southern Negro Youth Congress are combining in preparation for the fourth All-Southern Negro Youth Conference that will convene here, April 18-21.

The national office, working in collaboration with the Louisiana branch at New Orleans, has secured a list of outstanding persons who will appear on the four day program.

Dr. Max Yergan, executive director of the International committee on South African Affairs; Dr. Ruford Logan, professor of history at Howard university; Dr. Rajni Patel, head of the Youth Movement of India; Dr. Alain Locke, Howard university, and Dr. F. D. Patterson, Tuskegee Institute, will address the group.

One thousand young people will assemble, and make efforts to awaken an interest in young people as to the importance of the ballot and other problems confronting the group in the South.

Dr. J. Max Bond, Dillard university; Rev. Norman A. Holmes, Central Congregational church, New Orleans; Jesse O. Thomas, southern field representative, National Urban League; Prof. Dexey Wilkerson, vice president American Federation Teachers, and Archbishop Joseph F. Rummel, diocese of New Orleans, are a few of the sponsors who fully indorse the conference and the principles of the Congress.

Some of the highlights included on the program are: a four act drama, written especially for the conference by Prof. Randolph Edmonds, Dillard university, "The Land of Cotton," a country-wide art exhibit and a musical festival arranged and supervised by Prof. Frederick Hall.
