

TRENTON, N. J.

New Lincoln School

The eyes of the educational East will be focused on Trenton's million dollar New Lincoln Junior high school for the next week or ten days where the teachers of Race youth are planning to hold the 1937 annual conference of Region Five of the National Association of Teachers in Colored Schools, Saturday, May 1, at one o'clock.

The program which is being arranged by Principal P. J. Hill of the Trenton school, shows every indication of being inspiring, educational and timely. On this program and vying for first place in importance are three numbers that instantly claim the attention of men and women who give their time to the instruction of Race boys and girls. The first of these will be a panel discussion, "The Montgomery Plan", led by such eminent educators as Dr. Francis M. Wood and George Murphy of Baltimore, Dr. Howard H. Long, Grant Lucas, G. David Houston of Washington, and Miss Ada B. Jenkins of Trenton.

The second number of importance will be an address on "The Time Plan of the National Association of Teachers in Colored Schools", by Mrs. Willa Carter Burch, president of the association. The third of this series of excellent numbers will be a discussion of the evils of the Fletcher-Black Harrison Education bill. An effort is being made to secure Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune to address the conference on "The Negro and the National Youth Administration".

Other persons appearing on the program will be Dr. Charles H. Elliott, state commissioner of education, New Jersey; Dr. Garnett C. Wilkinson, assistant superintendent of schools, Washington, D. C., and Paul Loser, superintendent of schools, Trenton.

Some of the prominent educators who will be present are: Dr. Leslie Pinckney Hill, president of State Teachers college, Cheyney, Pa.; Dr. R. S. Grossley, principal Manual Training school, Bordentown, N. J.; Montgomery Gregory, principal New Jersey avenue school, Atlantic City, N. J.; Carlington L. Davis, regional vice president of the association, Baltimore, Md., and many others.
