

Baha'i 4th Observance World Peace Day To Be Held Sunday

Mrs. Eunice Braum, Managing Director of the Baha'i Publishing Trust of the United States, will be the speaker at the fourth observance of World Peace Day, to be held at Baha'i Center, 116 South Michigan Ave., Saturday, Sept. 14 at 8 p.m.

Mrs. Braum's topic is "Personal and Planetary Peace." The event will emphasize America's role in world peace. She will say that "No one can doubt that the great religions of the world have influenced and molded the lives and institutions of vast segments of Humanity. Each has created a wider unity and stimulated the development of a more progressive society."

Mrs. Braum further states that "No other agency, whether politics, economics, philosophy, science or education, has demonstrated a comparable power to regenerate and guide the actions of men. If the creative force of true religion has played such a vital role in the past evolution of mankind, why should it not again be exerted at this crucial period and toward the only logical goal — world unity?"

There is no admission and all are welcome.
