

Tid-Bits of New York Society

Now that summer has drawn to a close and many visitors are homeward bound and the students are off for school it seems that much of the sunshine and song that we have enjoyed during the summer months have gone. They have taken with them memories of summer nights and golden dawns. They seem to have taken the very spirit of summer with them. Things are dull and gloomy. We feel that a big part of life has vanished in the cloud of dust stirred up by the many cars that bore our lovely visitors away.

Dainty and attractive was Miss Naomi Cobb in a gown of soft white satin most modishly made in a princess effect with white tulle finishing off the hemline, wearing satin shoes of peacock blue and three strands of pearls her only jewels, as she received her guests at an informal party given in her honor by Jules Bledsoe, her brother. The lovely apartment of Mr. Bledsoe was attractively decorated with varicolored dahlias. Miss Cobb, who has been visiting here from Waco, Tex., has received many social courtesies.
