

Ex-Defender Editor To Talk Sunday

David W. Kellum, a former City Editor of the Chicago Daily Defender, will speak at the Baha'i House of Worship, Sheridan rd. and Linden ave. in Wilmette Sunday, April 14, at 3:45 p.m. His topic will be "What Is the Baha'i Faith?"

Kellum, creator of the famous Bud Billiken Day celebration for children, graduated from Wendell Phillips High School and attended the Northwestern University School of Journalism. He is now Director of Kellum's Employment Agency.

He is Chairman of the Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of Chicago, the elected administrative body of the Baha'i Faith for the city.

Kellum's lecture Sunday is one of a series of informative talks at the Baha'i House of Worship every Sunday at 3:45 p.m., following at 3 p.m. devotional program.